Boating parties are again in vogue.

Bristol pays one tenth of the county taxes.

May was a month of showers as well as of flowers.

The Columbia was crowded with excursionists on Decoration Day.

Four weeks more," sighs the school bus, as he thinks of vacation.

Overcasts have been at a discount in this region for several days.

It is expected that five teachers will be employed at the new school house in the Third Ward. This will be an increase of one.

The Fire and Drum Corps, with their new drums, took part in the Decoration Day services at Beverly.

A horse belonging to Mr. Myers, was taken sick at Comfort's livery stable on Monday night, and died.

Street sprinkling in our borough is a refreshing peculiarity which surrounding towns cannot follow.

The strawberry festival of the Baptist Sunday School, which begins this evening, will be continued Saturday evening.

Memorial Day is what it is called in Massachusetts and in the South. It is a more significant name than our Decoration Day.

Dogs in our borough are assessed at $1.00, and the personal tax of voters is 75 cents. The canine race still hold the precedence.

The Keystone base ball club is announced to play the club at Riverton, N. J., on June 11th. They are to have new uniforms soon.

Gardner Greiner, who has a reputation as a sign painter, is busy just now decorating the fences and stone walls in the adjacent country.

John Hope offers his property on Radcliffe street for sale. If he finds a purchaser he expects to take up his residence at Ashbury Park, N. J.

Robert D. Jones has taken charge of the News Agency, which has been removed across the street from the old stand, to the building adjoining Charles Ahlbe's confectionery.

Rev. Dr. Knox and Alexander Ralph, Esq., have returned from Buffalo, N. Y., where they were in attendance, as delegates, upon the sessions of the Presbyterian General Assembly.

The Esther has been entered in the regatta of the Quaker City Yacht Club, which comes off next Monday. The race will be over the course from Philadelphia to Gloucester and back.

We respectfully inform an inquirer that there are laws against the opening of any kind of stores or shops in the borough on Sunday, and that the people are in favor of them, but seem to be against their enforcement.

The horse and wagon belonging to Milton Webster were last evening accidentally backed overboard, at the Columbia's wharf. The equipment, after being well soaked, was rescued, and the horse draws the wagon around this morning as briskly as ever.

Some parties interested in sporting matter, are arranging for pigeon flying matches between Bristol and Philadelphia. The birds are to be Antwerp carriers, and taken to Philadelphia and released with the expectation that they will return to Bristol.

All our county contemporaries allude to the fact that a newspaper has been started at New Hope, but all with one accord say they have not seen it. The Gazette is more fortunate. It has a copy of the first number of the paper, which is called the Monitor. Its columns are well filled with news, and gives other evidences of enterprise.

An event which excited much interest in the community was the marriage, last evening, of Rev. J.S. Cook, formerly of the Bristol Methodist Church, but now stationed at Newtown. The bride was Miss Mary Bewley, a sister-in-law of Mr. James Braden. The wedding was quietly conducted, no persons but a few personal friends being present except the immediate relatives.

In the running race at Wheat Sheaf, last Saturday, between David Wright and James Whiting, the former won the contest by sixteen feet. The race was for a wager of $50. A large crowd was present from Bristol, and both contestants had admirers who did not fear to risk betting on their favorites. It is understood that considerable money changed hands, upon the result of the race being known.

Mrs. Mary O'Brien, an old lady 84 years old, residing on Penn Street, was killed on Monday evening about Cold Spring station, by the 5:45 train from New York. She was subject to spells of absent mindedness, and while under the influence strayed away on Monday to the place where she met her death. Her remains were brought to Bristol, where she was identified, and her body taken care of by her relatives. George W. Allen, Samuel Scott, Jonathan Lovett, Dr. A. S. Wilson, Joseph Beuk and Harry Rue, the jury summoned by Deputy Coroner Young, rendered a verdict of accidental death, caused by the deceased being struck by engine No. 77.

Decorations Day

Decorations Day was pretty generally observed in Bristol, although most of the stores as well as the Post Office remained open all day. The schools and the bank were closed. Flags at half-mast were displayed in many parts of the town. H. (Ray) Batty Post, No. 73, G. A. R., according to the program previously arranged, in the morning assisted in the decoration services at White Hall cemetery, Tullytown, Langhorne and Humsville. In the afternoon they assembled at their Armory, and at two o'clock, to the music of a dirge by Washington Cornet Band, proceeded to the Methodist burying ground. They were here received by the Sunday school children, who forming in two lines, one on each side of the walk, distributed bouquets to the veterans as they passed into the yard. The scholars then followed the procession until it halted, when they filed to the right and ascended a platform, which had the American flag as a canopy, under which the choir and the school, after the preliminary exercises by the Post, sang "My Country 'Tis of Thee." The band played another dirge. Rev. Mr. Gilroy offered a prayer, the school sang a very pretty ode entitled, "Tread Lightly o'er Their Graves." The graves were then decorated, and while the loving service was being performed the band played another selection. The Post then formed in line again, and after another hymn, and the Gloria Patri, by the school, the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Mr. Gilroy. The services at this yard were the most interesting, as no special preparation were made by any of the other Sunday Schools. The singing was quite an attraction, and seemed to be listened to with pleasure, as it was an agreeable variation to have vocal music in addition to instrumental. The singing by the school was accompanied by a cornet and organ. The Episcopal and Friends' burying grounds came next, and the same ceremonies, with the exception of the singing were gone through with, as was also the case at St. Mark's graveyard. The floral offerings were quite profuse, and many of them were handsome. The bouquets were impartially distributed, and the mound of every sleeping hero, who in the years gone by were the blue uniform of his country, was made the recipient of an affectionate tribute. Nature's May offering contributed through the medium of those who, while happy to know that peace reigns over the land, do not forget to whom honor is due for achieving that peace. There was an absence of sectional feeling, and if there had been any of the dead who fell on the other side, their heroism would have been acknowledged by graves decked with flowers as fresh and beautiful as any, although it would still be remembered that, as Robert Collyer says, while there were heroes on both sides there were patriots on only one.

Mysterious Disappearance.

The Baltimore Star, of yesterday, states that Mrs. Elmhurst Mahon, residing at Jacobsville, Anne Arundel county, Md., visited the Southern Police Station, Baltimore, on Tuesday night, for the purpose of gaining information as to the whereabouts of her two daughters, who have been missing since early Tuesday morning. Mrs. Mahon, with her husband and two young children, lately removed from Bristol, Pa., to their present home, leaving behind them, in the charge of relatives, the two girls, Annie, aged 15 years, and Blanche, 17 years old. The mother wrote to the girls to come on to Baltimore in one of the Erie line of steamers, promising to meet them at the wharf on their arrival. The daughters went to Philadelphia, took passage for Baltimore, and arrived there Tuesday morning about six o'clock. Mrs. Mahon was not in the wharf when they landed, but arrived a few minutes after and ascertained that they had left. Diligent search was made, but no trace of them could be found. Both are entire strangers in Baltimore, and unaccustomed to city life. The case was referred to Captain Delany, who did his utmost to discover their whereabouts, but was unsuccessful. Mrs. Mahon, accompanied by her little son, spent the night at the station house in anxiety and watching. All the parties are well known in Bristol, and their friends await with anxiety news of the missing girls.

All but three or four Councilmen went on the excursion to Newark, N. J., last Thursday, to inspect the roads which have been constructed by a new process by the contractor, who extended to Council the invitation to come over and look at the work. Carriages were in waiting for our borough fathers, and they were whirled rapidly over Orange and West Orange, and the adjacent country, over the improved roads, among pleasant scenery and thriving communities. Refreshment for the inner man was not overlooked, and some of the Councilmen cannot even at this interval of time allude to this feature of their visit without beneficent expressions illuminating their faces, as of the recollection of a pleasant visit. The visitors were very greatly pleased with their trip, and thoroughly convinced that the roads there all that is claimed for them, that they are durable, cheap, and admirably adapted for driving purposes, being smooth and free from dust. It is likely that in some portion of the borough a small section of this road pavement will be laid, so as to test its adaptability to our streets.

The ground has been staked out for the new paper mill. It will be located on Bunker Hill. The buildings will in the aggregate be 320 feet in length. One wing will be 100 by 40 feet, and will be 60 feet high. The centre will be 100 by 60 feet, and two stories high, and the other wing 120 feet long, and 40 feet wide where it joins the centre, and 65 feet at the other end. A switch from the main track of the railroad will branch off to the buildings. The buildings will be completed by October, if everything goes on as is expected. It will, indeed, be a great novelty to hear the hum of industry on Bunker Hill.

Burlington Island is over half a mile wide.

The Sacred Concert in St. Mark's Church, on Thursday evening last, was of such unusual merit as to demand more than ordinary notice. The occasion was the opening of the new pipe organ recently erected in the choir—off by Roosevelt, of New York. But little attempt was made to display the instrument, as but two numbers of a lengthy programme were given to it, the balance being vocal, and rendered by the choir of St. Malachi's Church, Philadelphia, and consisted almost entirely of selections from different composers of music, written for the church service. St. Malachi's is a fortunate church to have so good a choir as was here presented to a Bristol audience. The choruses were admirably sung both in time and rhythm, and left little to be desired. Of the solos—the most conspicuous for excellence was the "Cujus Animam," from Rossini's "Stabat Mater," which was given by Mr. A. H. Little, who possesses a very sweet tenor of a voice of considerable power and compass, and it is but just to say for this gentleman that, although we have heard the number given by some of the world's famous tenors, we do not recollect to have heard it more sympathetically and sweetly rendered. In the trio which followed "Madre del Sonno," Mr. Little's voice showed again to good advantage, with sufficient power and sweetness. The next rendition was Hummel's "Alma, Virgo," a well known and difficult composition, which was sung delightfully by Miss N. Lopez, who possesses a soprano of purity, sweetness and considerable cultivation. While this was Miss Lopez' best number, she was almost equally good in all in which she took part, and much of the success of the concert was due to her efforts. Miss M. P. Kelly, who sang alto in the concerted pieces, has a rich, powerful mezzo soprano voice, which was displayed in an "Ave Maria," by Dudley Buck, and in the trio with Messrs. Little and Welsh, was very effective. The rest of the choir, while very good in their several places, were not equal to those mentioned. The accompaniments were played by Miss Bradshaw very nicely, but in the opening voluntary she seemed uncertain and timid, and did not show the organ to that advantage it really merited. The march from Tannhauser was, however, given by Mr. Taylor in such an effective manner as to show its capabilities very fully, and its power was shown in accompanying the final chorus, "Salve Regina," in which it completely filled the church, and gave evidence that the instrument will fully meet all the demands likely to be made upon it, in the service to which it has been dedicated. The concert was in all points the most conspicuous success ever held in Bristol, upon which the Reverend clergy of St. Mark's are to be congratulated, and as the church was filled, it is hoped netted a nice sum for the organ fund.

Mr. A. P. Burbank's entertainment, last Friday evening, was very well attended, considering the short notice which had been given of the coming, and the exceedingly warm weather. It is hardly necessary to say that the program was in every way admirable, it could not be otherwise with Mr. Burbank as entertainer. His selections were varied, and were wisely chosen. They exhibited well his wonderful skill, rapidly changing from pathos to the humorous. He seems to take complete control of his audience, and make them laugh or weep, just as he chooses. The most meritorious readings were the scenes from "Rip Van Winkle," and "Lord Dunsany." The school boy's composition on "The Hoss," provoked roars of laughter, while the pathetic stories of "The Little Stowaway," and "The Soldier's Reprieve," brought tears to the eyes of his listeners. Altogether the entertainment was excellent, and the hour and a half listening to it were a rare treat to the audience.

Our Joel was safely escorted by a Pinkerton detective, last week, from Canada to Philadelphia where he now sojourns at the famous hotel known as Moyamensing. He with his Whitaker companions were brought forward in court for trial, but for technical reasons were allowed further delay. Joel, ever ready in resources, claimed to be a British subject, filing affidavits to show it, and said that although he returned to Philadelphia unwillingly, he had not been a fugitive from justice, but had stayed around Philadelphia waiting for the time for his trial to be fixed, and as there seemed no likelihood of the time ever arriving, he went to Canada to engage in business. Queen Victoria had better be inquiring into the grievances of this, her most recent loyal subject.

It is generally considered safe to walk about the streets, in the day time, at least, but the man who, while walking along that part of the First Ward where Cedar joins Mulberry and the latter joins Radcliffe street, and was surprised by a charge from a gun striking him in the thigh, has some doubts about the matter. The marksman who was so proficient in shooting at a target and a bird and a man ought to choose a wider sphere for his operations.

William Hawke and wife, of Bristol, moved their furniture to the house of Mrs. Phoebe Headley, on Maple avenue, Langhorne, last week, and will board with Mrs. Headley during the summer months. Mr. Hawke is building a new house at Hulmeville, and when finished, will occupy it. He has entered into partnership with Mr. Armstrong, of Hulmeville, in the management of the hosiery factory at that place. They will take possession the first of August.

On Monday, Fire Company No. 1 brought out their fire apparatus, and thoroughly tried their hose. The pressure was not very severe but nevertheless of the 900 feet tested four sections burst. This once demonstrates, what was made plain at the fire on Pond street, a few weeks ago, that much of the hose of this Fire Company is inadequate for service. New hose is needed and measures should be taken by Council to furnish it.

We are having the last run of shade for the season.

Scratch a Bristol Republican and you will find a "Half Breed."

There is considerable decrease in the attendance at the public schools in June.

The yachts seem to glide along our river front as gracefully on Sunday as on other days.

It is hinted that the school term in our borough may hereafter be changed to nine months in the year.

Our Bunker Hill is to have a monument—the new paper mill. It will be a monument of the enterprise of our citizens.

Cigarette smoking among boys is the evil Philadelphia doctors have been discussing. It is a vice appallingly common in Bristol.

A race between the yachts Clarence and Esther, on Decoration Day, from Beverly to Bristol, resulted in favor of the latter.

The Cold Spring farm above Bristol, has been sold by Mr. Leet, the late proprietor, to Mr. J. B. Hendry, of Philadelphia, who has taken possession.

The prophets were correct for once when they asserted that strawberries would be plenty. Does anybody know the origin of the name strawberry?

Not many copies of the revised Testament were sold in Bristol. The reason probably is because the people wish to first become familiar with the old version.

Tramps still tramp, but most of them at night in this kind of weather. It is too much like work to walk in the day time. A siesta under a wide branching tree is their principal noon-day luxury hereabouts.

William Nevegold and brother, who are sojourning at Ocean City, the new summer resort in Cape May county, N. J., while on an excursion of some kind, were caught on a sand bar by the rising tide. One of the young men, we are informed, swam to the shore, and the other remained in his perilous position until a boat was sent to his rescue.

Captain George F. Tyler's new boat, "The Maid of Kent," will probably begin running on her route between Philadelphia and Leipsic, Del., this week, perhaps to-day. The steamer arrived in Philadelphia last Saturday from Wilmington, and since then has been having the finishing touches put on. Her run from Wilmington was very satisfactory, the engine working splendidly.

The village of Chalfont, about six miles below Doylestown, on the branch of the North Penn Railroad, was greatly exercised Monday by the deliberate suicide of a stranger. The name of the victim is supposed to be either P. McLaughlin or Barney McLaughlin, both names being on pawn-tickets, nine of which were found on his person. These tickets were from W. S. Radcliffe's money loan office, No. 144 North Sixth Street, Philadelphia, and were for small amounts advanced on shoemaker's tools. McLaughlin is a man about 40, 54 feet high, dark hair and mustache, and wore a dark suit of clothes and hat. It appears he cut his throat with two shoemaker knives, one in each hand, completely severing the windpipe and jugular vein. The act was committed about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, under an apple tree in the lane of Abraham Ligh, the same spot where a man killed himself by taking landrum five years ago. Coroner Morris was summoned about 9 o'clock the same night, and after an inquest a verdict of death by suicide was rendered. The body was removed to the Almshouse for burial.

Messrs. J. R. Banquet & Co., Muskegon, Mich., thus speak: "St. Jacobs Old is the best liniment around here. We sell more of it than of any other proprietary medicine we have in our store. Our customers are continually praising its effective qualities, and we think that it is the best remedy for rheumatism, neuralgia, etc., we have ever had in stock."
